

CALL FOR PAPERS

“PPP 2027 – WHICH IS THE DIRECTION OF PARTNERSHIP?”

The first workshop of the EAPPP will be held in Milan, on October 9th. The meeting is intended to be a milestone for EAPPP’s work and the bedrock for future research. Academics, institutional and professional practitioners will gather to discuss and share views on a common, transnational definition of public-private partnership, accepted by both private and public entities.

EAPPP is welcoming papers from interested professionals that will answer and deal with the following questions:

1. how is PPP defined in your Country/in the legal system analysed?
2. which contracts are (or do you think should be) included in the definition of PPP?
3. what are the relevant norms and principles regarding PPP?
4. what are the most interesting opportunities of social and economical development of the PPP instrument in your Country/in the legal system analysed?
5. what’s the opinion of the national market’s operators?

We especially encourage participants to conduct interviews/seek the views of economic operators involved in the implementation of PPP, including, for example judges, lawyers/architects/economic consultant, private operators, public officials, investors, final users of PPP projects and stakeholders.

Papers should be no longer than 4.000 words (excluding references) – and should be sent via email to the address info@eappp.com, no later than Friday, September 15th.

Papers should include a short abstract and a brief CV of the Author/ Authors

A select number of contributions will be considered for publications, at discretion of the Board of Directors, alongside the interventions of the panellists.
